DETAILED ACTION

This office action is in response to remarks filed December 20, 2010. Claims 1-24 are pending for further consideration.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed on December 20, 2010 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive because of the following reasons:

1. Regarding Claim 18 applicants argued that the cited prior art (CPA) [Nadooshan (U.S. Patent No.: 6,161,182)] does not teach suggest “a secure seed in the logoff request in the client. After the client has logged off from the remote equipment, the client notifies the token generating server that the session has been terminated. It is therefore clear that the logoff request of Nadooshan is not accompanied by a secure seed”.

This is not found persuasive. The system of cited prior art teaches a method for obtaining token from token generating server and using token to encrypt random number received from remote terminal to gain access.

In cited prior art, once the client has completed accessing the remote equipment, a second transaction is established between the client and the token generating server to terminate the session. Thus, an access session is complete only if the active session is terminated and the token generating server is notified. In the system of cited prior art, the client transmits a session termination message to the token generating server, containing an authentication value (the encrypted previous client response creating a new response), a session identifier [secure seed], a termination status and an optional user log message that permits the client to record a message in the session log. Finally, the token generating server transmits an acknowledgement of termination of the session to the client.

As a result, the system of cited prior art does implement and teaches a system and method that relates to wireless local area network secure session management (Fig.1, 2, 10 and col.3 line 9 to line 30 , col.5 line 30 to line 44, and col.8 line 15 to line 36).

2. Regarding Claim 19 applicants argued that the cited prior art (CPA) [Patel et al. (U.S. Publication No.: 2005/0025091)], applicant argued that

A: Patel et al is not available to be cited against the instant Application because the filing date of Patel et al (5 August 2003) is subsequent to the filing date of the Applicants' priority document, Provisional Application 60/454,542, filed on 14 March 2003
This is not found persuasive. The system of cited prior art claims priority from document dated November 22, 2002.

B. Applicant further argued that Patel et al a mobile node derives a (session) key from key information stored at the mobile node, not from a secure seed".

This is not found persuasive. The system of cited prior art teaches a method for deriving key information from key associated with mobile node, sending reply message to home agent and enabling to derive shared key. In this system when the Mobile Node receives the registration reply, it derives a shared session key from its key information. For instance, the registration reply indicates that the Mobile Node is to dynamically generate the shared session key. Therefor, the Mobile Node derives key material x' and x" using a one-way hashing function at 728 and the Mobile Node independently generate a shared session key as shown at 732 by using Skey=hash (key material x" +random number).

As a result, the system of cited prior art does implement and teaches a system and method that relates to wireless local area network secure session management ([Fig.1, 7-8.and 0042, 0049-0066, and 0078]).

3. Applicants clearly have failed to explicitly identify specific claim limitations, which would define a patentable distinction over prior arts.

The examiner is not trying to teach the invention but is merely trying to interpret the claim language in its broadest and reasonable meaning. The examiner will not interpret to read narrowly the claim language to read exactly from the specification, but will interpret the claim language in the broadest reasonable interpretation in view of the specification. Therefore, the examiner asserts that cited prior art does teach or suggest the subject matter broadly recited in independent Claims and in subsequent dependent Claims. Accordingly, rejections for claims 18 and 19 are respectfully maintained.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-17, and 20-24 are allowed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 18 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nadooshan (U.S. Patent No.: 6,161,182) (hereafter Nadooshan).

1. Regarding Claim 18 Nadooshan teaches and describes a method for providing a secure communications session between a mobile terminal and a wireless local access network (Fig.1, col.3 line 66 to col.4 line 63), the method comprising the steps of: a mobile terminal sending during session logoff an encrypted logoff request accompanied by a secure seed [authentication value] such that the secure seed appears in the logoff request (Fig.1, 2, 10 and col.3 line 9 to line 30 , col.5 line 30 to line 44, and col.8 line 15 to line 36).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claim 19 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Patel et al. (U.S.

Publication No.: 2005/0025091) (hereafter Patel).

1. Regarding Claim 19 Patel teach and describe an access point for providing a secure communications session between a mobile terminal and a wireless local area network [0014. Fig.1 and 7], comprising: a means for transmitting a secure key as a session key; and a secure seed [root key, password or random number] to the mobile terminal using a secure communications method; a means to encrypt data using the secure key; and a means to periodically generate a subsequent session key [SKey, or Skey'] using the secure seed ([Fig.1, 7-8.and 0042, 0049-0066, and 0078]).

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
